Contents

Acknowledgements ........................................................................................................... 7

Olcay Akyıldız, Halim Kara, Börte Sagaster
Introduction ......................................................................................................................... 9

Olcay Akyıldız
What happens when fact and fiction overlap?
Emine Sevgi Özdamar’s Das Leben ist eine Karawanserai ........................................... 17

Theoretical Dimensions

Susanne Enderwitz
Autobiography and “Islam” ............................................................................................... 35

Özkan Ezli
Lejeune and Foucault or: A name with no identity ......................................................... 43

Herrad Heselhaus
Sentenced to life: Autobiography and aging ..................................................................... 51

Gabriele Jancke
Autobiography as social practice in early modern German-speaking areas ................. 65

Past and Present of Autobiographical Writing in Turkey

Derin Terzioğlu
Autobiography in fragments:
Reading Ottoman personal miscellanies in the early modern era .................................. 83

Nüket Esen
Menfa: Self-reflection in Ahmet Midhat’s memoirs after exile ....................................... 101

Halim Kara
Relational self-narratives:
Yakup Kadri Karaosmanoğlu’s autobiographical writings ......................................... 107

Hülya Adak
Who is afraid of Dr. Rıza Nur’s autobiography? ............................................................. 125

Erika Glassen
The sociable Self: the search for identity by conversation (sohbet).
The Turkish literary community and the problem of autobiographical writing ............... 143
CONTENTS

Sibel Irzık
Narratives of collectivity and autobiography in Latife Tekin’s works...........157

Börte Sagaster
“Me, who got into the text, me, who became the text”:
Encounter of fact and fiction in contemporary Turkish autobiographical writing.................................................................165

Turkish Literature in Comparative Perspective

Catharina Dufft
The “autobiographical space” in Orhan Pamuk’s works.............................173

Stephan Guth
Writing the self, choosing a language:
Non-Arabic autobiographies by Arabs, non-Turkish by Turks..................185

Angelika Neuwirth
Imagining autobiography:
Mahmud Darwish, his poetic persona, and his audience..........................203

Farzaneh Milani
“Yeki bud, yeki nabud…”............................................................................219

Contributors...................................................................................................227

Index................................................................................................................231