

Table of contents

Notes on the transcription of Arabic terms, places and names	11
Acknowledgements	13
1. Introduction.....	17
1.1. Outline.....	17
1.2. Research questions and theoretical foundations	22
1.2.1. Research questions	22
1.2.2. State of research, theoretical and methodological basis.....	23
1.3. Opening: Synopsis of field trips to Palestine.....	32
Part I
2. Modern Palestinian resistance: The shifting status of women in Palestinian society.....	43
2.1. The many faces of the role of women in conflict	44
2.2. Background and developments of women's agency: social, political, religious	45
2.3. Social milieu and nationalist discourse.....	46
2.4. The beginnings of women's participation in the national liberation struggle.....	47
2.5. The turbulent times of the post-1967 period.....	49
2.6. Observations on the first and second Intifada	52
2.7. Women in contemporary "militant resistance" organisations	60
2.7.1. Ḥamās, Gihād al-Islāmī, and Fataḥ: recruitment and "manipulation"	62
Ḥamās.....	62
Palestinian Islamic Jihad	63
Fataḥ	64
2.7.2. Religious vs. nationalist motives and the notion "religious nationalism"	66
2.8. Changing political activity of women over time.....	73
Résumé.....	74

3.	Theoretical concepts	77
3.1.	The struggle for recognition: gender and space.....	77
3.1.1.	Gender and the deconstruction of the male/female dichotomy	77
3.1.2.	(Gendered) space: private vs. public space.....	78
3.2.	Resistance: concepts and strategies	79
3.2.1.	Attempt to categorise resistance	80
3.2.2.	Forms of resistance in Palestine.....	82
3.3.	Beyond honour and shame: resisting the occupation.....	87
3.3.1.	Martyrdom operations in the realm of honour and shame	87
3.3.2.	Honour and shame concepts (focussing on Palestinian society).....	89

Part II

4.	Gendered martyrdom – the Palestinian istišbādīyāt	95
4.1.	“Official portraits” and the glorification of the istišbādīyāt	95
4.2.	The power of the written word: myths and symbols as glorifying elements	99
4.2.1.	Myths.....	100
4.2.2.	Symbols.....	101
4.3.	The glorifying texts – encomiums: Discourse analysis and social memory: the construction of identity and collective norms	105
4.3.1.	Ayāt al-Aḥras	110
4.3.2.	Wafāʾ Idrīs	116
4.3.3.	Dārīn Abū ʿAīša	119
4.3.4.	ʿAndalīb Ṭaqāṭqa	123
4.3.5.	Zainab Abū Sālīm	127
4.3.6.	Mīrfat Amīn Masʿūd	131
4.3.7.	Hanādi Taisīr Ġarādāt	134
4.3.8.	Rīm Šāliḥ ar-Riyāšī.....	137

4.4.	Glorifying myths and symbols.....	140
4.5.	The influential roles of the author, the text, the reader and the discourse.....	143
	Résumé.....	145

Part III

5.	Banality or taboo: the istiṣhādīyāt in social discourses.....	149
5.1.	From the production of realities to Sinnstiftung : Myths, symbols and the discourses of glorification	152
5.1.1.	A few words on the interview situation.....	152
5.1.2.	How to analyse the interview material	155
5.2.	Inside the world of select interviewees.....	157
5.2.1.	Umm Amal: Mother of a female martyr.....	157
5.2.2.	Abū Nūr: Father of a female martyr.....	161
5.2.3.	Abū Malak: Father of a female martyr	163
5.2.4.	Muḥammad: Journalist from al-Quds newspaper	166
5.2.5.	Ḥasan: Journalist from al-Ayyām newspaper	170
5.2.6.	Fawzī Barhūm: Ḥamās-Spokesman in Gaza	172
5.2.7.	Hudā: Ḥamās-Member of Parliament in Gaza	177
5.2.8.	Rānīyā: Lecturer at Birzeit University	179
5.2.9.	Imān and Samīr: University Professors	181
5.2.10.	Leader of the al-Quds Brigades in Gaza.....	183
5.2.11.	Former leader of the al-Aqṣā Brigades in Jenin.....	186
5.2.12.	In essence	190
5.2.13.	Notes from the other interviews.....	191
5.2.14.	Excursus: the group discussions	194
5.3.	Interpretative approach.....	195
5.3.1.	The gender aspect.....	197
	From irritation to reinforcement: impact on the male space	198
	The influence of the emergence of istiṣhādīyāt on male role models	198
5.3.2.	The aspect of motivation.....	201

5.4.	The glorification of istiṣhādīyāt as martyrs: (public vs. private) discourse as narrative.....	202
5.4.1.	Interacting in discourses as an example of power relations	203
5.4.2.	Discourses as production of meaning	204
5.4.3.	The topoi and the heroisation in a ‘suffering’ environment	206
5.4.4.	Counter-narratives vs. master narratives.....	207
	Résumé.....	209
6.	Public discourses and the (de-) legitimisation of (female) martyrdom operations.....	211
6.1.	The religious perspective(s).....	212
6.1.1.	Perceptions of afterlife and paradise.....	217
6.1.2.	At the door to paradise: controversial discourse.....	218
6.2.	Martyrdom operations in public opinion: approved or rejected by society.....	220
6.2.1.	Newspapers and posters	224
6.2.2.	Television programmes and broadcasting systems.....	226
6.2.3.	Martyrdom operations as a means to restore honour?.....	229
	Résumé.....	231
Part IV
7.	In memoriam: “culture(s) of death” and other forms of commemoration	235
7.1.	Dancing with the dead: wedding ceremonies, funerals and the notion “culture of death”	235
7.1.1.	Funerals and death processions	236
7.1.2.	The dress-code on the bier and behavioural rules	239
7.1.3.	The notion “culture(s) of death”	242

7.2.	Praised in sound and vision – abstraction of the istišbādīyāt beyond mundane death	243
7.2.1.	Glorifying songs and music	244
7.2.2.	Visual decoration – martyr posters as quotidian icons for society	246
	Résumé	252
8.	Conclusion	255
8.1.	Discourses, narratives and documents of glorification	255
8.2.	The media and the ideologist/propagandist manipulation of the istišbādīyāt	261
8.3.	Surrounding circumstances: gender, resistance and martyrdom operations under the auspices of the “Palestinian Cause”	261
	Bibliography	265
Appendices
Appendix 1	Palestinian istišbādīyāt (2002-2006)	291
Appendix 2	Militant (resistance) organisations in Palestine	295
Appendix 3	Maps of Palestine	298